Elevator Pitch

Experimental education in nature to foster sustainable development and encourage regenerative lifestyles in Colombia.

Climate Problem

New generations of kids and youth are growing in a complex world facing economic, social and environmental challenges caused by older generations in the last century. Current education system is reinforcing the same way of thinking, doing and relating that brought us all to this big crisis triggered by a separation from healthy ways of relating to ourselves, others and our ecosystems. Liquen offers regenerative experiences in nature to bring back to life this vital union between human and nature to build regenerative systems through experiential labs that combine body, arts and environmental education to heal this separation. Aiming, mostly, high schools and universities in Colombia that are interested in developing mindsets, values and skills towards a more regenerative and sustainable future.
